The author of Red Mars, Kim Stanley Robinson, clearly did the necessary homework to displace the reader from our natural environment and deposit us deep into the vast desert-like terrain of Mars. The multicultural facets explored along the way, and their inclusion into the martian mindset, make this a work of SciFi artistry.

I have both red and blue mars in my collection, as well as 'The martians', and having read other Mars inhabitation books, I consider Kim Stanley Robinson's Mars Trilogy as the one that stands out. I have read green mars before, several years ago, borrowed from the library and had to rush the ending to get the book back on time.
