New Guinea Moon by Kate Constable - Goodreads
New Guinea Moon is the story of a sixteen-year-old Australian girl who moved to New Guinea to live with her bush pilot father in the 1970's. I am a sucker for books with interesting settings and I have never read a book set in New Guinea before. I was also interested because it was a book about an expat which isn't all that common.
Usually, if the main character is foreign then he or she

Moon. ABOUT THE WRITERS KATE CONSTABLE Kate has written about her background thus: I was born in Melbourne in 1966 and spent part of my childhood (from six to eleven) in Papua New Guinea, where my father was a pilot in the Highlands. In Mt Hagen in the 1970's there was no

Kate Constable's Blog: Finishing New Guinea Moon I've written before about the weirdly unfinished process of "finishing" a manuscript. It doesn't seem like three years since I was last in this position -- gulp, I just checked, and it's closer to four years, actually.

Book Review: New Guinea Moon by Kate Constable |
Mboten

While reading New Guinea Moon I felt utterly connected - to the characters, to the world, and to my own history. For all readers New Guinea Moon delivers a traditional coming-of-age story in a very non-traditional setting. A touch of romance, a sense of discovery and adventure, and (best of all) a big dose of surprise for the reader.

Set on the cusp of New Guinea's independence in 1975, New Guinea Moon is the story of a country and a young girl on the brink of something new. The beautiful but challenging landscape and culture creates a wonderful backdrop for Julie's inner struggle to determine her own priorities and goals for the future.

New Guinea Moon by Kate Constable. Reviewed by Kathy Kozlowski, 25 Feb 2013. This is a wonderful coming-of-age story set in the exotic and racially divided world of New Guinea just before Independence. Julie is 16 and has asked to spend the holidays in New Guinea with her father, whom she has not seen, and barely heard from, since she was three. Brought up to be spirited and independent by her
