Sanctuary by Edith Wharton - Goodreads

Sanctuary is a novella by Edith Wharton, published in 1903. From what I have read, the plot did not cause any surprises at the time, but today the story seems rather unusual. It is a story which deals with ethics, morality, and family honor. While there is nothing particularly unusual in that, some of the choices made by the main character, Kate, seem rather drastic today, and one has a Wharton's most familiar novels, The House of Mirth and The Age of Innocence, offer a subtly subversive revisioning of the traditional courtship/marriage plot of the novel of manners.

Sanctuary | Edith Wharton

Sanctuary is a spare and moving investigation of the forces that impel human beings toward sin, self-doubt, and redemption. Edith Wharton (1862-1937) is the author of many critically acclaimed novels, including The Age of Innocence, Ethan Frome, and The House of Mirth.
